Dramatic Club Will Present 3 One-Act Plays

Three one-act plays will be presented this quarter, instead of one three-act play, by the Masquers. Miss Dorothy Few, head of the speech department, stated "we are having three one-act plays to avoid too many people having to attend, play practice during this busy quarter."

The first of these series of plays is "Overtones." The play is made up of a female cast. Performing actresses are Shirley Roundtree, Alyce McCord, Sylvia Griner and Jane Seabolt. Betty Lott will act as assistant stage manager.

On January 27, the play will be presented to Bradwell High School students in Hinesville. It will be the major event in a 45 minute program being sponsored by Dr. Georgia Watson, professor of education.

T.C. Dramatic Club seeking old 78 records

The Dramatics Club and speech classes at Georgia Teachers College this week asks the people of Statesboro for donations of 78-r.p.m. phonograph records and old news and picture magazines.

The records are needed for supplying background music for the stage and radio productions by The Masquers and the magazines are needed by the debaters for gathering material for debates.

Miss Dorothy Few, instructor in dramatics and speech, says she feels sure practically every household has a stack of old magazines around, and that many people have unused 78-r.p.m. records now that the other speeds are so popular.

"We can make good use of these records and magazines," said Miss Few, "and we'd appreciate any contributions."

Anyone having records or magazines to give is asked to call 773-J1 after 5 p. m. or address a post card to Box 284, Collegeboro, telling where they may be picked up.

were appointed.

The script is being written by Cherrell Williams, Carol Thomas, Fey Carter and Charles Grovenstein, assisted by Mr. Powell.

The ticket committee consists of Peggy Jones, Ann Ramsey, Jeanette Wallace, Betty Smith, Shirley Smith and Marie McKendree.

Miss Gernant's lettering and poster making class, Art 205, is in charge of publicity for the review.

Ann Barry, Betty Folsom and Shirley Smith make up the program committee.

The sets are being designed by Shirley Dykes, Jeanette Wallace, Fay Carter, Janice McGoogan and Mary Frances Cox.

Religious Emphasis Week

By VIVIEN COWART

Next week on T.C.'s campus is Religious Emphasis Week. Every year we hold this week above all others and claim it as a starting point for individual improvement and rededication to high ideals. There have been Religious Emphasis Weeks before and there will be again, but this is the most important one there will ever be for you because you don't know if you will get to see another. Next year you may be miles from T.C. and when you think of this inspirational week you don't want to have regrets.

Everytime that someone mentions Religion, with a capital letter, some people feel uncomfortable, so let's use a little letter—religion. This religion with a small "r" we will define as—a code to live by. Every body has a set of rules that guide him or her in things that he does or says, even a criminal has a code to live by, and people we frown upon, like Communists, have a very definite system that determines their conduct. So everyone, literally everyone, is entitled to participate in Religious Emphasis Week.

But, and there is a condition, this week that we hold at T.C. is Religious Emphasis Week with a capital letter. Since capital also means chief or head, this Religion that we speak of is simply a code of conduct with a chief or head—God.

The theme running through the coming services and meetings is "Foundations for Successful Lives. Who doesn't want to be successful? Sometimes listening to a person who has been through much can give us ideas on how to get through a lot of problems too. Even though the speaker will have to say something about God because nothing was ever accomplished, or started, or even thought of without his doing, and because you can't be successful just living without him, if you really mind the speaker saying God did it all or feel too embarrassed when He is mentioned, you can always close your ears. I wonder if God will let you close your ears—you can't do that without him you know.

Anyway, if you come to hear the speakers, they will be good and you are bound to learn some good techniques for living. And you really aren't as degenerate as you think you are anyway. So please attend all the meetings, you owe it to yourself to find out how to be successful and you might find out the secret of real success—God.

A Dried and Cut Question

Slowly, but surely T. C. is, in one way or another, acquiring some, although very few have been attained at the present time, of the more necessary facilities to make the social life here on campus more pleasant.

The residents of T.C. know that many more facilities are needed, but the prospect of acquiring them is very dim.

With this point of view in mind the George-Anne staffers wish you, the student, to think seriously for the next week, on the subject of what and how are some ways and means that a better more entertaining social life can be attained here at T.C., using the existing facilities.

The proposed question will be the public opinion poll next week.

Fellowships Are Offered Grads

College seniors majoring in chemistry, physics, or engineering are eligible to apply for Atomic Energy Commission-sponsored graduate fellowships in radiological physics for the 1954-55 school year.

Radiological physics is a new and expanding field of science. It is concerned with health physics, radiation monitoring and control, radioisotope measurements, and similar activities associated with the use of radioisotopes or the release of nuclear energy.

As many as 75 fellowships may be awarded, with fully-accredited graduate study to be carried out in three locations. One program is operated by the University of Rochester and Brookhaven National Laboratory, another by the University of Washington and the Hanford Works of A.E.C., and the third by Vanderbilt University and the Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

In each case, nine months of course work at the university is followed by three months of additional study and field training at the cooperating A.E.C. installation. The program is accredited for graduate-level training leading toward an advanced degree.

Basic stipend for fellows is $1600 per year, with an allowance of $350 if married and $350 for each dependent child. University and tuition and required fees will be paid by the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, which administers the program for A.E.C.

Additional information concerning the program may be obtained from science department heads or by writing the University Relations Division of Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies, P. O. Box 117, Oak Ridge, Tennessee.

Fay Akins Picked For Personality

This week's outstanding personality is Fay Akins. A second quarter sophomore from Statesboro, Fay is majoring in Business Administration.

Fay is an exceptionally pretty girl and has a pleasing personality to go with her looks. If ever you want a sympathetic listener, Fay is it.

Although she loves the campus and is active in many organizations, Fay plans to transfer to the University of Georgia next year.

Announcement

Three required assemblies will be held in the Lab School auditorium next week.

On Monday, Rabbi Newton J. Friedman will speak, and on Wednesday and Friday, Dr. Henry E. Russell will speak.

Dr. Russell will be on campus Wed. through Friday as principal speaker for Religious Emphasis Week.

Seats will be assigned and the roll will be checked. Unexcused absences will result in loss of quality points.

DANA KING GIVES SPEECH

Dana King, band director, will give a speech, January 16, to the Jordan High School, located in Columbus, Georgia. The subject will be "Clinician for That Section of the State." He will also conduct an all day rehearsal of a select group of musicians from the schools in that district.

The Editor Speaks

By REMER TYSON

T. C. has the reputation of being one of the most friendly colleges in this area. I'll buy this, as in most cases it has proven true. In the first issue of this paper an article was printed quoting a statement from the administration that T.C. students are rated as better than average scholastically. This has been proven by comparing college scholastic standards. I also accept this with some satisfaction. It is always good to know an institution concerning me in one way or another is rated above the average while carrying out its function. With all this pride tucked under our belts we strut our wings until someone mentions extra-curriculum activities.

This is the time we start giving out statements that are in fallacy. When a person, who carries the responsibility of a certain organization on his shoulders requests a member of that organization to perform a task, he usually has a perfect excuse, without any loop holes attached for not being able to carry out the job that is his duty. Most of the time the person does not want to do his duty for many unexcusable reasons. The most truthful reason is plain laziness. Other major reasons are; he has planned something that will be more pleasant to him; he may not want to do it at the time, although he is obligated, and later just simply neglects to do it, and in many instances an individual joins as many clubs as he can in order to acquire glory and prestige. This type of person does not intend to do any work at all, but wants to brag that he is in a numerous amount of clubs and organizations. Usually his fellowmates, who are members of the organizations for much better reasons, see through his "glory hound" attitude and lose respect for the person. His picture in the reflector may be weighted down with extra-curricula activities, but is there any satisfaction in acquiring the credit without earning it?

In the long run, just a handful of students do most of the work. If a person is selected the leader of the organization he is usually stuck with a large majority of the work involved. Sure, he should be able to do the work quicker and more effectively than just a common member, but the individual should not be stuck with the entire responsibility. The other small per cent work to carry their load of responsibility and many times take portions of others in order that another person may ease up just a bit.

This problem is becoming more serious as the school year passes. At the beginning of the fall quarter most students were enthusiastic and wanted to work. The clubs functioned fairly well at first, but as the quarter rocked past students became uninterested and declined to uphold the responsibilities they had assumed. This is the time when a person really proves his worth to an organization. If he sticks, I tip my hat to him; if he unshackles his responsibilities and leaves them pending for someone else to assume, I have the inclination to believe he is a quitter. As the year progresses toward the end this situation becomes more and more serious.

Many people on campus gripe about the few things there are to do on free nights. Here is a bit of advice to you. Join an organization and you will find many things that you can do in your spare time that will be of profit to you in the future.

Again I say "hats off" to the poor fool who does the work of many lazy individuals here at Georgia Teachers College.

Intramural Interest Boosted to Bottom

What gives with you students here at T.C. as far as intramurals are concerned?

A small group of students have organized the best intramural program in years at T.C., but only a handful of students are interested.

There is a fairly good turnout of students who wish to participate in the activities. This is where the problem comes about, there are more participants than there are students interested otherwise.

Many times the number of individuals taking part are more than double the fans.

At this point students come up with the statement "I can't take part in the intramural program, therefore it does not interest me." This displays poor spirit, gang. The brand of athletics shown in the intramural activities are not that of a polished type, but they display, for the most part, good clean play, plus excellent sportsmanship.

T.C. Plays Powerful Quantico Tonight

Tonight the Professors play the highpowered Quantico Marines. The Marines, lead by All-American Paul Arizin, have gone thru the season so far undefeated, racking up 13 consecutive wins.

Peerless Paul Arizin, former Villanova All-American and the leading scorer in the National Basketball League in 1951, is again the spearhead of the Marines' offense. Arizin has averaged some 31 points per game, with a high mark of 39 against Fort Eustis.

Ex-Seton Hall All-American Richie Regan has been living up to collegiate billing with sparkling back-court play and an excellent set shot that has kept some of the scoring pres-

Winter Quarter Activities Get Underway Soon

Winter quarter sports activities will get into full swing next week in the gym.

There is a bulletin in the dining hall for all boys who are interested in intramural basketball to sign it if you would like to be on one of the teams.

Six team managers will be chosen and they will draw names for each of six teams. So all of you fellows who think you know what a basketball is, sign up and have fun during the quarter.

sure off Arizin.

The all-around play of George Bales, who captained the Eastern Kentucky quintet last year has been a revelation to Quantico Coach Jim Tuma.

John Silk, who holds the Boston College scoring record, and Jim Mooney, former member of the Philadelphia Warriors who played his college a peak performance during an exhibition game against the Philadelphia Warriors as he dunked in 31 points and had the pros shouting his praises after the game. Mooney, although not a prolific scorer, has been the strong man under the backboards.

Outside of these most outstanding stars, Quantico packs along other greats such as Tom Holt, former captain at the University of Pennsylvania; Alan Shutts, of Springfield College, who holds the New England scoring record; Glen Bissell of Siena College; Fred Adams, of John Carroll; and Steve Zebos of Illinois Wesleyan.

Teachers Beat Newberry 85-55

The Professors met with very little success on the most recent road trips. They won only one while dropping two contests.

Teachers won easily over Newberry College by the score of 85-55. Webb, Elberton, sank 22 points to capture scoring honors for the night. Blanko fired 15 for the losers.

Following this victory, the team journeyed to Erskine College suffering a defeat by the powerful cage team. Whaley and Vermillion lead the nights scoring by netting 21 points each for Erskine. Again Webb lead the Teachers with 18 total points, followed by Warren, Ludowici, who sank 14 points. Whaley, 6' 9" center, played one season with the Professors.

In the last game with the Parris Island Marines, P.I. dunked the T.C. squad 106 to 87. Tompkins scored 21 points for P. I., but the Professors' sensational freshman, Howard "Bo" Warren, stole the show by swishing 27 points. Webb followed close on the heels of Tompkins with 20 points.

Battista Will Appear On Concert Program

Joseph Battista, brilliant American pianist, who will appear as the first concert on the Statesboro Community Concert Association series on Wednesday, January 27 at 8:15 p. m. in the T.C. auditorium, began his career by winning a series of prizes. He was born in Philadelphia of Italian parents and started winning prizes during his public school days. His first was the all-junior contest for pianist; his next was a scholarship to the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music and then a fellowship to Julliard.

An unprecedented honor was his engagement as soloist for a pair of Philadelphia Orchestra concerts the season of his debut. In order to further good will between the United States and Brazil, Battista was sent to give recitals throughout that country for two months all with notable success.

For three years he served in the special services of the army and upon release was engaged to play with the Boston Symphony under Koussevitzky at the Berkshire Festival.

Badminton is his favorite sport and he practices the game as diligently as the piano, challenging all comers—and he usually wins. Another hobby is parlor magic. He does sleight-of-hand, card and coin tricks and some complicated ones involving props. He developed one when New York's subway fare was raised to a dime and baffles his friends by changing nickles into dimes.

Lions Club Hear Dr. Rogers Speak

The Statesboro Lions Club, at its regular meeting on Tuesday of this week, heard an interesting discussion on the doctrine and philosophy of communism by Dr. George A. Rogers, head of the social science department at Georgia Teachers College.

Dr. Rogers elaborated on the theories of communism as set forth by its early proponents; and although his talk did not involve the points of opposition to communism, he stated that if time had allowed, he could have disputed the contentions of the leaders in communism very effectively.

Other activities of the meeting included the welcoming of Thomas (Dude) Renfro into the club as a new member and a report on the sight conservation committee. This report indicated that during November and December of 1953, five children had been given eye glasses, one child's glasses had been repaired, one child had received treatment from an eye specialist in Savannah, one child had been given assistance for enrollment in the Academy for the Blind which will equip that child for vocational rehabilitation, and applications from three children for eye service were processed. The total cost to the Lion's Club for the services to these children was $70.00.

Al Sutherland announced that the Ladies Night program was being planned for sometime in February with details to be announced later.
